Meet Charisse, a Certified Public Accountant

About me

I am a licensed accountant with extensive experience working for multi-national companies and BPOs in the finance sector.

The best thing about being an accountant today is that the traditional boundaries of accounting have been completely blown by technology. There is also an emerging culture of continuous improvement where accounting changes rapidly from static field into a dynamic, fast-evolving face of the world's economy.

I am a firm advocate of Lean Sigma principles, and have a full professional proficiency in English.
